

No-Cash, The Lucky Few

sprouted from a racist seed, the white men stole the land they need to renovate a church and state of greed, and call it something great so every fall you could give thanx, for genocide of natives by the ranks now you can find fast food in everytown, McDonalds, Wendy's, Taco Bell and as free trade kills domestic jobs, they blame minorities for all their probs and say they're the cause of unemployment, and lock 'em up for their enjoyment although they say that we're all free, it never felt that way to me as you sit back and watch us die, i cant help but asking "why?" crooked cops on every block, and racist courts to lock you up a judicial system so corrupt, if yer not white you are a criminal educated by the biased man, the kids too dumb to take a stand faith in dreams that always die, but nightmares hold the upper hand it snowballs into worthless pawns multiplying, buying. on and on

as you sit back and watch us die, i can't help asking, "why?"
