

No Motiv, Ashes

This darkened world it has become my being inside I dwell within it's realm the one's in the once brighter place pass me by without a glance alone I am without a single human touch only the demons hunting me and I can no longer be kill me slowly and let me die without death I have no more life living to me has no meaning I may as well end it while I can