No Warning, Growing Silent

I won't break the silence just 'cause you ask me I won't change anything for anybody Somewhere out there I know there's something for me I try and listen to my own words They don't make sense I know exactly what I'm thinking The words don't come out If they did, would it matter? Would you listen? I won't break the silence just 'cause you ask me I won't change anything for anybody If I'm not quiet - I'm thinking. Don't ask what about There's a reason for the silence and why the words don't come out If they did, would it matter? Would you listen? Left alone, for how much longer It doesn't kill me I feel stronger