Noah Cyrus, LP, Punches

honey feels like my worlds burnt down I'm trying to put it out I'm trying but don't know honey

I'm drowning in all my doubt I'm trying to start again I try but I'm struggling

after all this time
got nothing to lose
see nothing but you you might say I'm wasted on you but when you break I break for you too love can beat us black and blue but, darling, I'll take the punches for you punches for you punches for you love can beat us black and blue but, darling, I'll take the punches for you darling got good intentions keep running in circles I'm fading out like a ghost darling keep making the same mistakes I'm trying to start again I try but I'm struggling after all this time got nothing to lose after all this time see nothing but you you might say I'm wasted on you but when you break I break for you too love can beat us black and blue but, darling, I'll take the punches for you

darling
darling
darling
darling
like a map faded in time like and old forgotten tune I know love has been unkind for the two of us and you might say that I've been cruel but when you break I;m breaking too love can beat us black and blue but, darling, I'll take the punches for you punches for you punches for you punches for you punches for you punches and punches punches for you punches for you punches for you punches for you
