

Nocturne, Hallucination

I've reached the end of my hallucination
It left me without a thought
And everything is green again...

I found you in my dreams
You were falling down below me
And I didn't want to catch you
And I never want to know you...

You've started something now
You've started something now
You've started something now
That you can't escape from...

I cannot conquer this temptation
I see you falling down
It brings me life
I can't explain this sensation...

You've started something now
You've started something now
You've started something now
That you can't escape from...

I've reached the end of my hallucination
It left me without a heart
And you will soon be dead again...

My thoughts of you do scare me...

You've started something now
You've started something now
You've started something now
That you can't escape from...