

Noe Venable, Sea Of Possibility

I woke up inside a dream where rivers all were running red thought everything I loved was dead I thought last night that I had reached the end thought that I had reached the end the window open you came in to light the temple in my head

to light the temple in my head

with you I want to taste this freedom with you remember life's divinity but without you this love I take with me
into the sea of possibility

I woke up inside a dream
where dirty things were coming clean and I chose life and you chose me I thought last night that I could finally see

I stayed up into the dawn the window open moon shines on the door was open you were gone the door was open you were gone from me

with you I want to taste this freedom
with you remember life's divinity
but without you this love I take with me
into the sea of possibility waves as far as I can see a thousand horses rise in me I'm tapping out the rhythm of your poetry a thousand horses rising up the ocean comes to fill my cup today is the beginning of the death of me oh with you I want to taste this freedom with you remember life's divinity

but without you this love I take with me
into the sea of possibility