

Notarthomas Jamie, Learning To Fly

A simple voice speaking so clear
And after all this time you find the answer was right here
If your skies are lifeless and gray
Remember the sun will set most brilliant at the end of the darkest day
So if you start to fall, everything's okay
Just reach into a glide that's right
Spread your arms out, and you can
Learn to fly
Higher
Open your heart; no it's okay
The greatest known souls in history say
What you give will come back twice
There's really no such thing as a sacrifice
So if you start to fall, everything's okay
Just reach into a glide that's right now
Spread your arms out, and you can
Learn to fly
Higher
Well, I'm talkin' 'bout somethin' that colors each part of your soul
If something's that bad, you've got to take it
And turn it around
Just turn it around
And it is true that in the end
If you welcome each pain as if it were your friend
Your worries melt into song
And your limits take you further than if they had never come along
So if you start to fall, keep that fact in mind
Just reach into your heart that's right now
Spread your arms out
Feel the wind
Look inside right
And you can learn to fly
Higher
Higher