

Nouveaux, You Breathe

A quiet place, far away
In the center of my heart
Sheltered by the solitude
Like my daddy's arms

Seeking and knowing I will find
Resting these weary eyes
Leaving my deepest fears behind
Under an endless sky
I lift my heart up high

And Father, you breathe
And I hear you whispering
And your mercy covers me
And Father, you breathe
And your presence fills the air
And I find my solace there

Here is where peace abides
With all that I desire
You lay me down in luscious green
Rest when I am tired

Savior, you meet me where I am
Here on this earthen floor
Dying, you gave me life again
Emptied of all but love
And that would have been enough

But Father, you breathe
And I hear you whispering
And your mercy covers me
And Father, you breathe
And your presence fills the air
And I find my solace there

Father, you breathe
And I hear you whispering
And your mercy covers me
And Father, you breathe
And your presence fills the air
And I find my solace there