Nouveaux, You Breathe

A quiet place, far away In the center of my heart Sheltered by the solitude Like my daddy's arms

Seeking and knowing I will find Resting these weary eyes Leaving my deepest fears behind Under an endless sky I lift my heart up high

And Father, you breathe
And I hear you whispering
And your mercy covers me
And Father, you breathe
And your presence fills the air
And I find my solace there

Here is where peace abides With all that I desire You lay me down in luscious green Rest when I am tired

Savior, you meet me where I am Here on this earthen floor Dying, you gave me life again Emptied of all but love And that would have been enough

But Father, you breathe
And I hear you whispering
And your mercy covers me
And Father, you breathe
And your presence fills the air
And I find my solace there

Father, you breathe
And I hear you whispering
And your mercy covers me
And Father, you breathe
And your presence fills the air
And I find my solace there