Nuclear Assault, Behind Glass Walls

See a man living behind glass walls His eyes are blind they see nothing, nothing at all, All his thoughts bend twards things, things that only he sees All the world a reflection of his dreams, his nightmares are all too real

Trapped within a crystalline world of thought Not a fool unaware, of what must be sought All his hopes and his dreams they are frozen in time All the world a reflection of his dreams, his nightmres are all too real

Tear out the eyes that do not see Turning your thoughts to perceptions within

Reaching through shadows blood on his hands Grasping the truth that has found