

Obi Best, What It's Not

What is what?
What it's not
Half is none, all or nothing
What is less?
What's too much
That's enough, all or nothing
What's your thoughts?
Give them up or shut up, all or nothing
What's your thoughts?
Give them up!

I can't win I can't win I can't win
Without you
I always lose always lose always lose
Without you
Half of me half of you half of us is still two
'Cause I'm twice the you
I'm twice as me, I'm twice as free
When you're gone

Kneeling by the pool, water drops on your skin
I pushed you in, all or nothing
And that's too much but I need more I need more
Maybe I'm only half aware
Maybe part of me still cares
Maybe a piece of you is scared
Pieces like us scattered everywhere

I can't win I can't win I can't win
Without you
I always lose always lose always lose
Without you
Half of me half of you half of us is still two
'Cause I'm twice the you
I'm twice as me, I'm twice as free
When you're gone

We are not alone we are not alone
Looks as though we're floating
Life is moving glass, through walls which we pass
Looks as though we're floating
We are not alone we can't be alone
Because we're all dreaming