

Once Tasted Life, his dedication the memories of you will never fade still we have to keep those promises weve made seconds pass like hours time goes by the leaves fall down no ones around the summers gone in this autumn sky as significant as the warmth of the sun in my face after the rain a save place to breathe again as the shadows of time are about to catch me i recall you smile and the memories remain pictures show places that weve been before they left stories bout our plans and what we said a flooded broken heart nowhere to go you said dont mind well meet somehow in these words try to read between the lines i hope to see you smile again and frame these feelings that ive missed for too long find a place in life to breathe again the memories remain im hanging on the words you wrote a story untold doesnt mean a thing when youre away right now