

Orange Blue, S.O.L. Song Of Liberty you'll embrace your one truth you will terminate that devilish cold anywhere and hold me there in your healing arms

even if the wind blows trying to expand the depth of the snow in our hearts see that boiled white at a glance 'cause I have tasted

your delight, your one fate your respect of golden gates your big smile after my voice that told you thoughts about a choice your immense unique fight your sweet essence in your light your sweet song of liberty whose brawny waves roll over me and I won't stop my hand scratching princess' name in that golden sand though the salt comes back again dissolved

'cause I've tasted

I'll never believe who we are and I'll never agree with that sentiments surrounding us
