

Oratory, Heroes From The Past

In virgin seas they sailed in search of land despite fear they bravely found a new world

Where the mysteries of the glorious nature are silently kept by myths for a world where we don't fear our Gods we could die, to make our people pray

for a world where we don't fear the unknown we could try, try to fly far away

But now we have nothing left Only pride, the pride in our distant past

A legacy from the brave sailors who ruled

The wonders of the deepest seas
