

Orion's Reign, Together We March

Sleepless, in self-denial
Our hearts on fire towards a worthless deed
Fighting for just more power
Burning desire, to end this kill -
But damned to carry on

The cold metal feel

Kingdoms rose and slowly crumbled all at the whim of this sentient steel,
Many proud heroes were cruelly humbled blinded by the sword's appeal

Betrayed, Father we are
Still in this night together we rise
Let down again, Fathers and sons
Grab men your hearts together we march

As the lightning strikes the people turn to dust and life breaks down
When we look over the burned earth at the chards and blistered scars
Then at last there in the openness as we learn the horrid truth
That the power of steel compelled it and burned down our home and roof

Betrayed, Father we are
Still in this night together we rise
Let down again, Fathers and sons
Grab men your hearts together we march

We shall be free once more

Live by the sword
Die by the sword
Kill by the sword
Free by the sword
By the sword

We'll make our stand Until the End

As the lightning strikes the people turn to dust and life breaks down
When we look over the burned earth at the chards and blistered scars
Then at last there in the openness as we learn the horrid truth
That the power of steel compelled it and burned down our home and roof

Hear me, Fathers and sons
Still in this night together we rise
This is the end, finally free
Grab men your hearts together we march
