

Oval Opus, First Kids Names

I woke up today taking up the whole bed,
And I finally felt good about it.
I took a cold long walk across the bathroom tile,
Looked myself straight in the mirror.
I saw one toothbrush and the toilet seat up,
And I stop to think about it.
Hadn't notice you're gone.
Has it been this long?

Now I'm crashing through the silence,
Of all the things I thought I'd miss.

Do you listen to the CD,
That we fought about all night long?
Do you ever think you see me,
In the people passing by?
After all the dreams,
And the first kids names,
There's no one to blame,
But I'm still here without you.
And do you feel the same,
When I tell you that I'm feeling alright?

I went out tonight,
Saw a couple old friends,
And they never said a word about you.
I took my same old seat,
At my favorite bar,
Looked myself straight in the mirror.
I forgot to shave,
I wore the shirt you hate,
Color fading since I've been without it.
Hadn't noticed you're gone.
Has it been this long?

Now I'm crashing through the silence,
Of all the things I thought I'd miss.

Do you turn on the TV,
At the same time every night?
Do you think you ever think you see me,
In the actor that I look like?
After all the dreams,
And the first kids names,
There's no one to blame,
But I'm still here without you.

You'll be there,
I'll be here,
Taking it a day at a time.
I'm everyday at a time.

After all the dreams,
And the first kids names,
There's no one to blame,
But I'm still here without you,
And do you feel the same,
When I tell you that I'm feeling alright?
