

Oval Opus, Say Anything

She walks softly cross the room,
Tears are falling down her face.
Words spoken from her lover,
Words she never thought she'd hear.

"I can't be here anymore,
This isn't the life you waited for,"
his final words then walked right out the door.

All her friend says it's ok,
See they never liked him anyway.
The said he was the kind of guy who would not stay.
I think she needs somebody else,
Time to make a new life for herself.
Well here I am,
One last cry of suffering

Say anything you want to.
Believe anything you need to.
If it can take away your pain.

Imperfection is my own reflection.
Next to your grace and beauty,
I'm broken, shatter, scarred.
It's this that kept me from letting you accept me.
As I am, this foolish man,
That you had better off discard.

Say anything you want to.
Believe anything you need to.
If it can take away your pain.

I never wanted to hurt you.
I walked away so you could find somebody who,
Would always be with you.
Don't you doubt I still miss you.
I was chasing a dream that would keep me far away,
Each and everyday.
Guess I did what I had too.
I set you free so you could,
Find the happiness I failed to bring you.

Say anything you want to.
Believe anything you need to.
If it can take away your pain.

So try, try and live without me.
I know you're better off without me.
I only want ease your pain.