

Over It, Any Day

I lost you in my desert mind
I dried up in the sun when you were water, my oasis, I could not kill the thirst in time catch me, if you think you can promise you wont look back

If we rinse it away, all this time I will still taste your rain on my lips
while i'm burning away, there's no pain
I could still find you any day now

I never left my favorite part of you behind the more we roam the less I let go I can't find the time for waking

When each night I find The vision she had meant for daylight

I could still find her any day now so much to say.... now you're gone and time wont take your taste, not today..
I could still find her any day now.
