Paradise Lost, Redshift

There's something in the air that greets me There's something in the air I don't know where I belong, or where does it go from here

See my dreams; they're not like anyone's

There's something in your stare that greets me There's something in your stare that tells me where I belong And where it all goes from here

I don't know where I belong or where it all goes from here

See my dreams; they're not like anyone's, anyone's

There's something in the air that greets me There's something in the air I don't know where I went wrong or where does it go from here
