

Pat McGee Band, Rebecca

Who's got all the answers to questions that Rebecca has?
She's been cluelessly wondering just how long she's been had,
She knows more than you or me and she never thinks she's wrong,
It seems the tables are turning;
she found herself hurting for oh so long

Does anybody out there want to help Rebecca find a clue to life;
I guess she feels she was the victim and we are the knife.
There is a price to pay when you put on that face and roll the dice,
One day soon you'll realize the world ain't that nice

Chorus

Are you alright and are you o.k.?
Didn't anybody ever give a care around your way?
Will you be all right after we go?
Won't you tell me someday cause Oh I'll never know

Everybody knows you can't read the writing on the wall
so don't come in.
Even you and I know you can't and you won't want to start this thing all over again.
Why don't you just drive on down that line,
cause we don't have to let you in.
Well, you seem to think you know it all;
let me tell you something... you can't win

Chorus

Hey, Rebecca this is your pilot speaking and you're about to land.
I hope you got all your answers and you've come to understand.
That people and things are always going to change and you can't stop them
now,
will you look back and let me know if and?

Chorus
