Pedro The Lion, Nothing

if only the rules were built upon philosophy that i embraced i'd hug your neck and kiss your face but its very obvious that your ideals are not for me you'll tell me what to do but you will see that i do as i please cause i want to do it my way i want to fly the problem with rules is they alienate the criminals when whose to say if what they did was wrong that day if you'd open your mind up you'd see that there is nothing that's always wrong no matter what you say it's just not true that there's only one way i hope we have ourselves an understanding
