Pennywise, Falling Down

Falling Down everday - to where I can't be found Left like some wreckage that's been shot down over sacred ground Can't find a place for refuge - safe exits slip away No chance for my redemption - stumbling towards an early grave

Falling everday - farther all the time Searching for something there - something i can never find Falling everday - farther all the time Searching for something there - something i can never find

Without a sound - the silence waits-keeps pulling me back down I push against it but there is no use I can't stop now No place I can hold to - how much further can i go Sliding down into the darkness - waiting for the fatal blow
