

Perry Como, Surprisin'

Surprisin' surprisin'
that you should come along,
that you should come along,
that summer day just when you did . . .

Surprisin' surprisin'
that you should smile at me,
and I should smile at you,
that summer day just as we did . . .

Two strangers for a moment,
then we wandered down the lane,
and found a spot of shelter,
from the sudden fallin' rain . . .

Surprisin' surprisin'
to wake as from a dream,
to wake as from a dream,
and find the sun was high above . . .

. . . but it was not surprisin'
when we found we were in love . . .
< instrumental verse >
Two strangers for a moment,
then we wandered down the lane,
and found a spot of shelter,
from the sudden fallin' rain . . .

Surprisin' surprisin'
to wake as from a dream,
to wake as from a dream,
and find the sun was high above . . .

. . . but it was not surprisin'
when we found . . . we were in love . . .

Words and Music by John Rox