

Persephone, Strange

When we touched
You said you loved me
Then you left
I couldn't say a word
To confused
Feelings refused to tell
What we already knew.

My heart is aching
Stupid me
I damn myself
'Cause I hoped you would stay
Although I knew
This story had to end
Before it began.

We are strangers
Reaching for the same star
Strangers
Reaching for the same dream
Strangers
With a broken heart
We are damned to feel.

The silence is our witness
The witness of a strange love
We learned to remain silent
Strangers don't cry.