Pet Shop Boys, Delusions Of Grandeur

You don't care about nothing So you don't care about love

If you want me to come back

You'd better change

You'd better give up talking about money

Begin thinking of love

If you want me to come back

You'd better change

You'd better change for the better It cost more than dollars and cents

Take it from me there's - got to be

An end to this decadence This decadence

You don't care about people

So you don't care about pain

If you want me to come back

You'd better change

You'd better change for the better

Start using some common sense

Take it from me there's - got to be

An end to this decadence

For decadence - is fatal

It's the beginning of the end

In self-defense

I cannot recommend

This decadence

You don't care about real life

You're too distant and strange

If you want me to come back

You'd better change for the better

It may be rather intense

Stop this caprice, you've got to cease

This fin-de-siecle pretence

For decadence - is fatal

It's the beginning of the end

In consequence

I cannot recommend

This decadence

This decadence

This decadence

This decadence