

Phatfish, God Made Man

God made man
Gave him rule over Earth and sea
There was friendship and harmony
Between creator and humanity
Then temptation came
And foolishly man disobeyed
From them two came into the world
And in his shame man could no longer stand in the presence of God

His thoughts became futile
His heart was darkened
And he exchanged the truth of God for a lie
Worship created things, rather than God himself Giving over to his shameful desires

But God has a plan to reconcile his people back to him
unfolding down through history
For he so lover the world that he gave to man his only son and punished him instead of us.

Bruised for me, he was hung upon a tree mocked and cursed for all to see
The Lord and Saviour of humanity
And then the darkness came Evil thought he'd won the day
But death could not hold onto him and on day three he rose again
The price was fully paid

But God has a plan to reconcile his people back to him
unfolding down through history
For he so lover the world
that he gave to man his only son and punished him instead of us. x2

God made man
Gave him rule over Earth and sea
There was friendship and harmony