

Phil Keaggy, All Our Wishes

All our wishes can't be wrong,
All these dreams between us two.
There's a yearning in our song,
Wishing, believing that dreams come true.

She carries their own,
Waits for the day they bring her home.
This child, baby in arms,
He hears her say something's gone wrong.

All our wishes can't be wrong,
All these dreams between us two.
There are others who know the song,
Who know the meaning of its tune.

He kneels by her side,
Places his hand where there was life.
This child, baby is gone,
She hears him say we'll carry on.

All our wishes can't be wrong,
All these dreams between us two.
We are not the only ones.
Yet for now it's me and you,
Yet for now it's me and you.
