

Plastic Heart, Fame on Fire

When I look into your eyes
I can see a thousand lies
And if I just walked away
Would your plastic heart break?

Yeah I guess it's time to face it
I'm unhappy and I hate it
Wish I could take back the past and just fucking erase it
Spending money I don't have and now you want me hated
Nothings ever good enough
You make things so complicated

And I swear if I walked out
Would you even hesitate?
You'd be fucked up in a mansion somewhere out there in LA
Life is easy when you're heartless I can see it on your face
And with all the drugs you take
I hope they make you go insane

You'd do anything for a taste of fame
You might act different but you're still the same
And even though I don't let it show its killing me inside

When I look into your eyes
I can see a thousand lies
And if I just walked away
Would your plastic heart break?

It's always a compromise
I've seen this shit a thousand times
And if I just walked away would your plastic heart break?

In your world, there's no distractions
You look for satisfaction
You hurt yourself injecting all your imperfections

Sticking needles in your face won't change your ways
You might look different but you're still the same
And even though I don't let it show it's killing me inside

When I look into your eyes I can see a thousand lies
And if I just walked away would your plastic heart break?
Its always a compromise
I've seen this shit a thousand times
And if I just walked away would your plastic heart break?

You'd do anything for a taste of fame
You might act different but you're still the same. And all, I know

When I look into your eyes I can see a thousand lies
And if I just walked away would your plastic heart break?
Its always a compromise
I've seen this shit a thousand times
And if I just walked away would your plastic heart break?
Would it break
And if I just walked away
Would your plastic heart break?