

Po' Girl, Drive All Night

where's your home when life's spent on the road where you gonna hide your eyes when your heart's come undone it could take all day headin' out before the sun comes up you could break down before you get out of town

what's done is done
no matter what's been said it's somethin' how much it takes when your friends are far away

i can't judge you
the things that you did i'd take it all back oh, if I could

how can you tell
when the road never ends she'll wrap her arms around you as you lay your head

i drive all night
the highway lines
just to see you
smiling back at me
