

Polaris, Inhumane

Like a deer in the headlights, I'm barely alive
Lost in the ether, cutting my teeth on Whatever it takes to survive

Suffer; everyone's a victim
Cover your callous indifference
Deaf are we who refuse to listen
I need a shock to the system

Fall short in your breathing
Eyes wide, stare at the ceiling
No fear and no feeling
I've seen enough and it's left me numb

One more for the reaper, he's been hot on my tail
But I've been trying to dig a little deeper
Cos the pain don't feel like it used to feel, no
I've seen enough, I crave the rush
So I'll dig a little deeper still

Such a tragic affair
All the souls still doomed to meet their end
Clasping their hands in a prayer
To gods deaf to their cries
To live and die as another statistic
Oh, doesn't that sound sadistic?

One more for the reaper, he's been hot on my tail
But I've been trying to dig a little deeper
Cos the pain don't feel like it used to feel, no
I've seen enough, I crave the rush
So I'll dig a little deeper still

Callous and cold, inhumane, we drop the deadweight
(Side effects are to be expected
We grow detached and disconnected)
Callous and cold, inhumane, we drop the deadweight
Can't bear to look away
Count every name you erase like a bloodstain

Who do you mourn when everyone's a victim?
(I don't need to know)
No sympathy, don't sing for me
Give me a shock to the system

In the end we return to nothing
What's another nail in the coffin?
Fall short in your breathing
Eyes wide, stare at the ceiling
No fear and no feeling

One more for the reaper, he's been hot on my tail
But I've been trying to dig a little deeper
Cos the pain don't feel like it used to feel, no
I've seen enough, I crave the rush
So I'll dig a little deeper
A little deeper still
