

Poor Old Lu, For The Love Of My Country

The thing that sticks out about this song, of course, is the very quiet beginning until it really kicks in Lyrically, this is another one of our rare "pseudo-political" songs... in a way. This song p for the love of this country, hey

one man pinned up and traded away for the love of the country, hey He is...

for the love of this country, man
how He laid down to love His land
for the love of this country, man
He is all

but what can i say?
(oh)
run and hide?
(no)
how can i be?
(low)

do you see this place?
(gone away, gone away, gone away)
do you see this race?
(gone away, gone away, gone away)

for the love of this country, see how we shake our fists angrily
for the love of this country, see we are so

but what can i say
(oh)
run and hide
(no)
how can i be (low)

do you see this place?
(gone away, gone away, gone away)
do you see this race?
(gone away, gone away, gone away)

for the love of this country, hey
would i live so to fade away?
for the love of this country, hey
would i fall?
