Primal Fear, Promised Land

In times of greed and jealousy When clouds fullfill the sky The rain will fall It's hiding the tears from my eyes

A trip right into fantasy The colours of my soul Will take me there Where confident spirits will flow

Where I can find peace of mind

Take me back where I belong Give me back my pride Building castles in the sand In a place called the promised land

A place of pride and dignity Where you can find no hate So stay with me And join me before it's too late

Come with me in this fantasy I'll be your guiding light
Just trust your fate
And everything will be alright

Where I can find peace of mind

Take me back where I belong Give me back my pride Building castles in the sand In a place called the promised land

Take me back where I belong Give me back my pride Building castles in the sand In a place called the promised...

Take me back where I belong Give me back my pride Building castles in the sand In a place called the promised... Place called the promised land