Pulley, Just For Me

forget the tears running down my face everything so unimportant and you say when we understand all our problems will go away and i'm just trying to keep things simple know what's it going to take for me to say a few more hours i think we need a change get back to all the reasons when we've tried to turn the other way response triggers an image i'm just trying to keep it all together now what's it going to take for me to say i built these walls around my world so no one could get in selfish that's the way i want to be sharing not my thing and definitely won't give i'm keeping all that's left it's just for me.