

Punchline, Much More

When I was younger, I thought that the world revolved around me.
Everybody was just a character in my little life story.
Now I'm older and a bit smarter, I can see that I'm nothing.
I wish I could go back, but I know I can't, to thinking that I'm everything.

Much more than I expected, I was not prepared for this.
I grew up too quickly and now I see that things don't always work out right.
I don't understand, but that's life. Things don't always work out right.

My brother and sister would go out on Friday nights,
I would sit home and watch TGIF. They never came home, but I didn't have to deal with the things that they did.

Much more than I expected, I was not prepared for this.
I grew up too quickly and now I see that things don't always work out right.
I don't understand, but that's life.

I miss not worrying at all. I miss not caring.
