Punchline, Time In A Picture

I arrive alive and to my demise it's another sunny day A dark and gray glass lottery a victorious dismay I'm up all night inside my room just trying to ignore the unfortunate color of the sky I live under

I'm going I'm gone but I won't say for long. I'm going I'm gone but I won't say for long.

The hand I drew had more cards in it than should have been dealt But there's a card completing everything that I have not yet held Untie the lines and lives that hide beneath my broken smile Cuz I can't crack it anymore your eyes say stay but your stare says go away So I will go you're never going to see me again so I'm told

I'm going I'm gone but I won't say for long. I'm going I'm gone but I won't say for long.

I've been listening to the memories from a long long time ago Snapshots taken by my mind in time but where were they last night? When time in a picture arrived

I'm going I'm gone but I won't say for long. I'm going I'm gone but I won't say for long.

Right nows the time to drive a million miles away But I'll be here in pictures Right now the time to drive a million miles away I'll make it in my head.