

Quo Vadis, Inner Capsule

I just can't take it anymore
Knees and hands bolted to the floor
The smoke is coming down on me
Will I just suffocate or be

The room now empty as I see
Locked doors, no windows, dark to be
Lightning and thunder I do feel
As my worst nightmare becomes real

And now that I've been left alone
I get my chance, enter the zone
In which my deepest thoughts occur
And where I speak in silent words

Wonder what will become of me
Will I just suffocate or be

Help me!

Wonder what will become of me
Will I just suffocate or be

Silence spreads, I hear my gasp for air
My heart beats faster as seconds, few to spare
I feel the pain, eyes strongly shut together
Last scream comes out, and then I feel the power

Wonder what will become of me
Will I just suffocate or be

A sheet of paper lies in front of me, blank
Emotions trapped inside an infinite rank
Cannot seem to extricate the feel
Imprisonment of days turns into years
