

Rachel Farris, In A Field

In a field faraway in a courtyard
Where the children come to play
in a field full of dreams
Where the rainbows dance along the streams

I hear your love in the breeze that passes by
I hear dancing, ribbons falling from the sky
Hold my hand, I go twirling, twirl again
Take a bow, tie a bow, make a vow, so I know
We will always be

In a feild you were there
There was laughter
You were playing with my hair
In a feild you can hear every feeling
Whispered in your ear

I hear your love in the breeze that passes by
I hear dancing, ribbons falling from the sky
Hold my hand, I go twirling, twirl again
Take a bow, tie a bow, make a vow, so I know
We will always be

In a field you and me
Sharing secrets underneath our favorite tree
In a feild full of light
Where the flowers turn to birds and take their flight

Oh, I don't want to wake up
Do I ever have to wake up?
Please don't make me wake up

I hear your love in the breeze that passes by
I hear dancing, ribbons falling from the sky
Hold my hand, I go twirling, twirl again
Take a bow, tie a bow, make a vow, so I know

I hear your love in the breeze that passes by
I hear dancing, ribbons falling from the sky
Hold my hand, I go twirling, twirl again
Take a bow, tie a bow, make a vow, so I know
We will always be

In a feild faraway in a courtyard
Where the children come to play
In a field full of dreams
Where the rainbows dance along the streams
