

Rachel Farris, Soak

I get so focused on the future and where I want to go
That I forget where I've been to get me here
Can I remember anything I've done or anything I've felt?
That I won't soak in the journey's my big fear

Do you soak it in, this life you're living?
Do you soak it in, this life you're living?
And after all you've done and all you've seen
Will you remember anything
Do you soak it in, this life you're living

I get so busy trying to get somewhere I miss what's on the way
No time for looking around a thousand miles an hour
What good is getting there if I'm not happy just the way it is?
Appreciate what comes around, the sweet or sour

Do you soak it in, this life you're living?
Do you soak it in, this life you're living?
And after all you've done and all you've seen
Will you remember anything
Do you soak it in, this life you're living

Circumstances, taking chances
Learn to feel it all
Small advances, brief romances
Cutting through the fall
Even if you crawl
Whether big or small, take it all

Do you soak it in, this life you're living?
Do you soak it in, this life you're living?
And after all you've done and all you've seen
Will you remember anything
Do you soak it in, Do you soak it in
Do you soak it in, Soak it in

Do you soak it in, this life you're living?
Do you soak it in, this life you're living?
And after all you've done and all you've seen
Will you remember anything
Do you soak it in, this life you're living