

Raism, Gluttony

Buy the most expensive coffin buy the life that you desire buy the most beautiful lover buy the friends that you don't have.
Swing and move just like a peacock filled with nothing crowned with gold

Buy respect and some ideals until you have no soul to sell.
Hide your misery and sorrow behind the vanity of your dreams buy the hopes of your tomorrow it's a bargain, they come cheap.

And when death will come to claim you I'll be watching from afar when all your gold will turn to dust Oh, what a nice corpse you are!
