

Reba McEntire, Just Looking For Him

(Sunny Russ)

She can concentrate on workin'
Until her work is done
She can hold a conversation
As well as anyone
She'll fool you with sincerity
And if you don't know her well
You would never see it
You could never tell that

She's just looking for him
She's only rememberin'
She might look like she's ready
To fall in love again
But she's just looking for him

She keeps one eye on the road
And one on the other lane
Lookin' for his car
His memory's re-played
She searches other faces
Tryin' to find that spark
But no one new can reach her
Or fill her hollow heart

She's just looking for him
She's only rememberin'
She might look like she's ready
To fall in love again
But she's just looking for him

You'd better keep your distance
Don't let her reel you in
She's not quite herself now

You'd better keep your distance
Don't let her reel you in
She's not quite herself now
How could she be when

She's just looking for him
She's only rememberin'
She might look like she's ready
To fall in love again
But she's just looking for him
She's really just looking
She's just looking for him
