

Rebecca Lynn Howard, You're Not Memory Yet

(Rebecca Lynn Howard/Melba Montgomery/Jerry Salley)

Pretending that it's not over
Would be such a foolish thing to do
But I'm just a fool in love with you
When will this end, I need to know
If you're gonna leave why don't you go
So I can start leaving you behind, cause
You're not a memory yet
Someone I can forget
You're still here in my heart
Not just an occasional thought in my head
Right now I'm holding on
To something I know is gone
Wish I could lay it to rest
But you're not a memory yet
Give me the satisfaction
Of watching you walking out the door
If you don't love me anymore
If you were a memory time would fade
The past just a little more each day
'Til you hardly ever cross my mind (but)
You're not a memory yet
Someone I can forget
You're still here in my heart
Not just an occasional thought in my head
Right now I'm holding on
To something I know is gone
Wish I could lay it to rest
But you're not a memory yet