Reckless Kelly, Black And White

Life goes black and silent like the night that fills the air Searching for reason like you never had a prayer Its funny how those things you took for granted all along and now there gone

Chorus:

But it keeps you reaching out for things so far away Holding out , holding on till another day comes, till another day comes You gota live through today

Well all those hopeless questions when your dreams are all but gone The hardest part was knowin that you knew the answers all along Sometimes when you finally see the light, its black and white

Chrous:

But it keeps you reaching out for things so far away Holding out , holding on till another day comes, till another day comes You gota live through today

Chorus:

Yea it keeps you reaching out for things so far away Holding out , holding on till another day comes, till another day comes You gota live through today
