Reckless Kelly, Vancouver

When the sun went down You were sitting under someone else's sunset And I wasn't around And you were wishing that I was a guy that you'd just met

And I was probably stumbling down some back street alley in Amsterdam While you were making excuses and breaking another heart Or maybe I was drinking wine with the pigeons in a square in Venice And I was wondering what you're doing And wondering where you are

When the stars came out I was sitting in a studio on Sunset And the lights were down And I was wishing the time we had wasn't over yet

And you were probably sitting in the airport waiting on a plane to Vegas While I was packing a suitcase staring at a waiting car Or maybe you were heading out to some house party on Lake Austin And I was wondering what you're doing And wondering where you are

When my luck ran out I was sitting on a concrete block in Little Rock We didn't scream or shout We just said good-bye And I waited for the click And the lights went out

And now I'm packing it up and I'm rollin' on out to Vancouver For some wasted youth and a fresh set of lonely stars And I'm wondering baby, if you ever saw the best of us And I'm wondering what you're doing And wondering where you are

I still wonder what you're doing And wonder where you are
