

Red Box, Let It Rain

I was dead before
I ever touched the floor
I was in between
A whisper and a scream
In a wounded light
Your eyes look black and white
And are these the dreams that find us?

In you head before
Was something I adore
But then in between
Someone picked you clean
Did you steal a name
From a friend who looked the same?
And are these the lies that bind us?

Now I realise
You won't ever let it rain
You don't seem the same
I will watch the skies
I don't even know your name
You don't seem at all the same

I was dead before
I ever touched the floor
I was in between
A whisper and a scream
And I know by now
I just can't work out how
And is this the milk of kindness?

Now I realise
You won't ever let it rain
You don't seem the same
I will watch the skies
I don't even know your name
You don't seem at all the same

Now I don't feel at all the same
