

Red Delicious, Dust

I lost myself again
I don't know who I am
I don't know where you are
I must've gone too far
And I'm too tired to try and find
My way back home now

All my love has crumbled into dust
I don't know what will become of us

I think I cry because
Of how easy it once was
That's how love should be
Why is it hard for me?
Why do I look at you and see
Only a stranger there now?

All my love has crumbled into dust
I don't know what will become of us

Too much afraid to kill it though it's dying
I know the truth, but I'll continue lying to you

All my love has crumbled into dust
I don't know what will become of us

I lost myself again
I don't know who I am
I don't know where you are