

Refused, Racial Liberation

It's time to see, to dare and face the facts. It's been going on so long that we can't turn our backs. No more, we need to set things straight. We can't longer have a foundation built on hate. On lies of the white mans superiority. Whit these kind of ideals we can never achieve equality. Racial tension increasing more and more. We gotta solve these problems from the core.

And I see ignorance, anxiety and fear that is breeding this hate. We gotta learn and educate to get these problems solved. Racial liberation should be our goal.

Society still maintaining the tradition by using violence and corruption when people are trying to listen to words that change and make a difference. They scare them, oppress them until they change opinion. By using colors they can still maintain conservative ways and actions that is causing so much pain. No, no more, you can't divide a nation. It's timeto rise to the racial liberation. To only see things in black and white do you think that it's right?
