

Rentokill, Step Over The Wall

Sustainability's gone, lost in effective approach.

Pounding on expectations based on this new point of view.

After abusing this place, you'll find a blueprint of affinity.

Do we turn down disgrace by moving on?

Concern is easily replaced by blindly trusting the near-limitless potential of the human kind's desire.

We're climbing higher, dig deeper, extremely profound!

Pick up what's left of reason and throw it all away, onto the pyre!

The fire burns it to the ground.

Pick up what's left of reason, step over the wall and kill the biosphere, still unaware of the evident impact.

But abusing this place got us the IMF acknowledgement.

Do we need faster pace for moving on?

Time is not easy to face, but we're apparently long overdue.

Lean back and watch the human age expire.

We're climbing higher, dig deeper, extremely profound!

Pick up what's left of reason and throw it all away, onto the pyre!

The fire burns it to the ground.

Pick up what's left of reason, step over the wall.

Pick up what's left of reason, ignored like the planet's last call.

On the verge of extinction.

Dying for growth, yet far beyond the rates of supply.

Far beyond the rates of replacement.

And no replacement we will find.

We're climbing higher, dig deeper, extremely profound!

Pick up what's left of reason and throw it all away, onto the pyre!

The fire burns it to the ground.

Pick up what's left of reason, step over the wall.