

Reverend Horton Heat, Bedroom Again

Once we had love in the beginning
Everything was just too good to be true
Yeah, but we made the mistake at the beginning
Of thinking love would stay bright and shiny new
The room that we once shared is now your's only
A guestroom for the cats, and kids, and kin

Yeah, but now that we're divorced,
Would it be a sin
If we made the bedroom
The bedroom again

Its been a very long journey
Too far to have traveled all alone
And now one, one long look tells us surely
What we should have already known
The ring sits in the drawer gathering tarnish
And the line on my finger has tanned in

Yeah, but now that we're divorced,
Would it be a sin?
If we made the bedroom
The bedroom again
Go!

The wedding albums turned from white to yellow
And the ink on our divorce has done dried in

Yeah, but now that we're divorced
Would it be a sin?
If we made the bedroom
The bedroom again
Yeah, honey, let's make the bedroom
The bedroom again