Rez Band, Dark Carnival

A handful of tickets already paid for, A heart, full and jaded, taken for too many rides, I'm still looking for somewhere to spend these dreams, On the midway between my heart and my mind, I hear echoes in these rusty landscapes, The sounds of the sunlight bounce off these cold winter walls, Deep inside, I move without memory, From shadow to shadow in this dark carnival.