

Rez Band, I Think You Know

You used to think you were okay, but now you know it wasn't true,
You had the world by the tail, now what you gonna do?
You rolled the dice and played to win,
How will you solve the fix you're in?

I think you know there's something else,
I think you know there's someone else.

She was the heart you tore apart with all your selfishness and greed,
He stands between you now, so will you stay or will you leave?
What could've changed her overnight?
She walks in such a different light.

I think you know there's something else,
I think you know there's someone else.

I think you know,
I think you know,
I know you know,
I know you know.

There's nothing left but ashes where there was once a stolen kiss,
But what the saviour offers, you can't afford to say no, you can't afford to miss, oh,
The light is shining in your eyes, now let him come and live inside.

I think you know there's something else,
I think you know there's someone else,
I think you know there's something else,
I think you know there's someone else.